

I would like to register an objection to the proposed use of cellphones on commercial airlines. It is my experience that people on cellphones in public talk much louder than the level of normal conversation. My objection arises from the likelihood of being seated next to someone else who is engaging in such a conversation. Much to my annoyance, I have had this experience on buses and trains, but one is able to move one's seat on those forms of transportation. On a commercial airline, one is "stuck" in one's assigned seat and I don't want to have to listen to one side of a conversation while I am trying to sleep, read, or otherwise not want to be disturbed in this way.
